THE LUZDN SUGAR REFINERY.

The Luzon Sugar Refining Company, Limited, was brought into existence in March, 1882, under the direct auspices of the princely house? of Jardine. Matheson & Co., and it has been under their wing ever since. The capital of the Company was originally $700,000, divided into seven thousand shares of $100 each. What it is now we don't even pretend to know. Probably most people have forgotten, but it is nevertheless tive, that this concern was formed for the purpose of taking over certain properties in Manila Spaniard named José Munoz Limjango, together a greater flourish of trumpets than did this one; the | brings us to the present position of affairs. success of the China Sugar Refinery under Jardine's management had apparently intoxicated from the beginning a tremendous rush for allotted than they were quoted at a considerable most extensive gambling at high rates followed, strated that it was not the gold mine so fondly | practically valueless, but that little bit of sharp in company,

McGregor Smith, the manager of the Company, is not quite so easily ascertained. Another investigation of the Company's business was shortly afterwards made by Mr. John McGgregor (of Mesars, Jardine, Matheson & Co.'s) and Mr. Morrison, a civil engineer, from Shanghai we'l known in connection with that firm, and these gentlemen substantially endorsed the report of

Mr. Dickie. The second annual meeting was held on the 18th March, 1894, and the report for the year's working showed a net profit, including the $4090 65 brought forward, of $27,784.23, which certainly appeared on paper an eminently satisfactory results that after interest had been deducted, and fees paid to Consulting Committee and Auditors, and remuneration and commissions to the General Agents and the Agents at Manila, a balance of $12,030.70 only remained, which it was recommended should be placed against losses incurred by the typhoons in 1882. This was somewhat disappointing, but the General Agents were consident of the suture, the net profit for January and February alone having reached 19 79.

On July 23rd, 1884, an extraordinary meeting was held in order to amend one of the Articles of Association, so as to allow the General Agents to declare an interim dividend, and in August of that year an interim' dividend of 3 per cent. was duly paid. At the annual meeting on the 18th Black Current | March, 1885, the report showed that the balance at credit of Profit and Loss was only $7,781.78 and out of this it was decided to liquidate the balance of the typhoon damage of 1882, and preliminary expenses, amounting to $6,955 69; and to carry forward $826.00 to new account. This was another disappointment to confiding shareholders, which was not in any way lessened when a glance at the statement of accounts showed that interest, fees, and commissions to General Agents, etc., totalled $19.168.79. The working for 1885, although nothing like what was predicted, showed some improvement, a sum of $12,094.52 being available for distribution. and the General Agents very prudently recommended a dividend of 3 per cent, which was agreed to, But a very heavy item had been added to the Company's responsibilities in the shape of extension of works for charcoal working and a new water supply, amounting to $148 938.07, minus $50,000 returned by the vendors of the Wienrich patent. To meet this outlay the General Agents advanced a loan of $50,000, free of interest until the Company. attained a position to pay a dividend of 7 per cent. As the Company has not paid any dividend since that time, the General Agents' handsome concession is still in the nature of a cumshaw to the shareholders. This year, it is worthy of note, the amount charged for interest, fees, and commissions had increased to $23,845.03, or more than one half of the Company's net

The actual loss in working states that arrangements are now being ma'e was stated at $12,300.49. Again the General Agents came to the rescue and returned their officers of the old Mitsu Bishi Kaisha, to establish commissions and interest due, aggregating over $14. 53. The following year also proved profitless, and the works had to be closed for several months Again no dividend was available, the $1,354.64 at credit of Profit and Loss being set aside to reduce the debit balance of the previous year. mercial recklessness on Friday is not improvident. management of the business estens by carried of the Still less is it gambling or extravigance of the descriptions prevalent among the uncommercial classes. His theme is the appetite, which, he asserts, the experience of the Court of Bankrupicy/ proves to be spreading beyondall bounds through out the mercantile community, for speculating in matters bearing no relation to its legitimate business. The practice of unscrupulous trading in the subjects of men's ordinary business is constantly provoking the just animadversions of the Court of Bankruptcy. It is a vice as old as the hills, and not likely ever to be completely corrected. Of another sort of gambling, which in comparison with Mr. Lawrence's kind, might almost be called legitimate. Mr. Registrar Brougham had an example before him, immediately after he had done with the speculator in copper. Mr. Arthur William Powell made his appearance once more; and that it may be his last in public is the kindest wish which can be expressed on his behalf. According to the story so often recapitulated, the became, in the year 1885, master of £65 000. At present his liabilities are £3,061, and of assets there are none. By horse-racing he reckons he lost between £30,000 and £40,000. Cards would probably account for a good slice of the residue, though he states that, if one night he lost £13.000, he won £15,000 on another. Nothing could be more absurd than the entire tenour of his brief career. But, at any rate, it showed something like consistency. He set himself the task of being as ridiculous as possible, and of spending his money in a way to extract as little benefit, or has never been without examples of folly of Registrar Brougham understood that moralizing would be wasted upon him, and let him pass his examination without the delivery of a homily on prodigality, or the imposition of suspension, which could have answered no useful purpose. He is, or will soon be, free to throw away another £65,000, if it be given him. Public interests are much more seriously compromised when persons associate and confound the characters of sober business men and dealers on the Stock Exchange in risks which are for them as mere gambling as is for a West-end spendthrift wild betting on the turf or the hazard of thousands at baccarat. The Registrar drew a true distinction when he treated that as a breach of commercial propriety necessitating punishment for the sake of public excontracts etc., to, at the some time, preserve the ample, without respect either to the advantage of creditors or to any exceptional degree of personal culpability in the particular debtor.

The Registrar deliberately says, "Almost every report made by the Official Receiver contains a statement that the debtor has experienced large losses on speculations which have nothing whatever to do with his legitimate business." Mr. Lawrence does not seem to have sinned beyond measure in the nature of his speculations. regarded by themselves. The amount of his aggregate losses is trivial in comparison with the totals to which bankruptcy officials are accustomed. Really, for a speculator, he pulled up in his precipitate course with extraordinary self-restraint. But the propensity which has carried him into insolvency, and the habit which his case illustrates of the desertion by business men of their lawful vocations for the prosecution of a business not their own, and for them not business at all, though it masquerades as such, are ominous phenomena in modern mercantile life, and call for the severest checks the bankruptcy procedure can apply. By very many London traders all business seems to be thought to possess so intrinsic an identity that what would be gambling in a lawyer or clergyman is, in the merchant or shopkeeper, a simple offshoot of his acknowledged dealings. It is a delusion, equally mischievous for the neglect of their rightful functions, to which it tempts men, and for the eventual ruin of their fortunes, which is the all but invariable consequence. Hereditary citizenship and membership of an old established firm, which may imply close acquaintance with the mysteries of one or another specific department of commerce, confer not the slightest power of predicting the vagaries of the money market or the vicissitudes of a ring. . When a trader is caught red-handed in the act of thus confusing business and speculation, it is incumbent on the spirit which, he says, is become general among law to remind him and his class that losses, which would have invited pity if incurred in the ordinary conduct of affairs, are as discreditable

The territory in question is said to extend many miles on each side of the peniusula from Cape Lucas, so as to embrace La Paz on one side and Magdalena Bay on the other. It may be remembered, in this connection,

Of course, any of these grantees w uld be glad to encourage an influx of Chinamen, for they would fulfill the conditions of the grants as well as anybody else, and, these fulfilled, the grants would become of enormous value.

In one respect the 'establishment of a Chinese colony in Lower California might be favorably viewed here, as it would have a tendency at first to draw off our Chinese population. But, in another point of view, it will strike Californians unfavorably. If the Chinese dominated Lower California they would not be comfortable or friendly neighbors. It would be difficult to prevent intercourse between them and their countrymen in this State, and at times when there was a demand for labor in the southern counties it would be hard to keep out the Chinamen of the south. In fact, we may be pretty sure that a majority of Chinamen who gain entrance to Mexico will improve the first chance that offers to slip over the line into California or Arizona. San Francisco Call.

COLOUR AND HARMONY.

The great art of dress is to know just; how far to draw attention to clothes and no farther; never to allow them to impinge upon the interest that should be centreed in the face. I have seen intelligent human beings who apparently chose that their attire should be the first and last thing one thought of in connection with them. No beautiful woman, if she be clever withal, makes this mistake. Her dress may be sumptuous; it may heighten herattractions if judiciously chosen; it should never astonish and bewilderus. We read of the gorgeous attire of Queen Elizabeth, and are dazzled with the cloth of gold, the pearlembroidered ruff and jeweled stomacher recorded in Zucchero's portraits of that vain and ill-favored sovereign. They are the woman; and take an undue prominence in our recollection of the thin, shadowless face, surrounded and overpowered by so much magnificence. But of her beautiful rival's clothes we hear little; and when we think of the Holyrood portrait of Mary it is the refinement and dignity of the lady we remember, not the splendor of her apparel.

The butterfly prettiness of a Pompadour, or the vacillating plainness of many an espiegie countenance that smiles upon us from canvases painted in the Directoire days, may thrive under a flutter of laces and roses and parti-colored ribbons, or be humorously accentuated by a monstrous wig, gigantic hat and jabot. Perhaps they need such adventitious aids; at all events, eccentricity of form and violence of co'or (as in the beflowered brocades the ladies of the Court of Louis XIV so much affected cannot hurt .. them. But it is otherwise with the noble ladies whom Vandyck and Reynolds loved to paint. No doubt some of them, like Joseph, affected many colors, bu these painters knew that to nine-tenths of women nothing is so "unbecoming;" that sallow mottled or rubicund complexions are best relieved by broad masses of one tint-perhaps oftenest by white or black-emphasized by a sharp accent of opposing brightness. They knew, moreover, that where the dignity of beauty itself may be absent, the beauty of dignity, of that calm, unconscious grace (which is indeed a "spiritual" grace more than a merely physical one) is incompatible with obstrusive clothes. Sir Joshua, when the modes were outrie, mitigated them as far as possible. His gracious lidies speak to and fascinate us with careless lease in spite of their monstrous edifices, their whalebones, buckram and scarcely manageable hats. And, above all, they mostly stand, with no strong shadows, rightly clad in tender hues, that harmonize with the soft gray English sky above and soft home landscape round them. He felt -and he taught his sitters for the nonce to recognize—that the human face, if endowed with any measure of intelligence, nobility or charm, must rise superior and not be subservient to his raiment; that a variety of colors is not brilliancy, nor is bedizenment distinction. To borrow a familiar illustration, the voice that calls loudest to us is not always distinct, nor do the words uttered make the deepest impression. It is by the right balance and adjustment of tone, not by violence, that the orator's greatest effects are produced. And this is no less true , of the language that is addressed to the eye and of that which appeals to the ear, for both are avenues to the understanding.—Fortnightly Review.

A SURGICAL SURPRISE.

DESTROYED BRAIN MATTER REPRODUCED. Fresno claims the honor of a most important discovery in medical science, and Doctors Deardorff and Sponogle are the names that will be mentioned in the medical journal as the dis-

It has heretofore been almost an axiom among the profession that nerve tissue will not granulate, or, in other words, that when a part of it is destroyed or cut it will not be reproduced. as in the care of muscular tissue, which will granulate and heal. The case upon which the doctors named operated is one of some nine months' standing, and has been frequently mentioned in the local newspapers, but the outcome of the experiments was not definitely ascertained until a few days ago, and is now given for the first time to the public through the columns of the Republican.

Some time in August last a ten-year-old boy named Frank Stamm was accidentally shot by a playmate with a pistol ball in the left side of the forehead. The missile crashed through the skull without glancing and imbedded itself in the brain. From the jagged edges of the wound portions of the brain protruded, and the sufferer lay unconscious and as one dead.

Several physicians were called in and, after making an examination which satisfied them that the bullet was in the brain, they said there was no hope of the patient surviving. Then Drs. Deardorff and Sponegle were sent for, and, after consultation, decided that there was about one chance in a million to save the lad's life. They determined to try the chance. They argued that if let alone the boy would die in a few hours. whereas if they operated upon him he would feel no pain, as he was unconscious, and, consequently, there would be nothing brutal in their mode of procedure. Neither would it be unnecessary, for nothing can be unnecessary to save human life, even if the chance is but as a drop of water in a river. Without losing any time they trepanned the skull and removed several pieces of broken bone and a fragment of the bullet that had been split |in passing through the skull. Then they cut off ROOM SUITE, MIRRORS, CARPET, LACE the torn pieces of the brain that protruded and | CURTAINS, PICTURES, COTTAGE PIANO after cleaning the wound left it open for the dis- by BROADWOOD, HARMONIUM, DINING the Bankers or at the offices. charge of pus for a day or two. with more than ordinary anxiety. but his condition was still critical, and a STANDS and DRESSING TABLES, WARDturn for the worse might come at any ROBES with PLATE GLASS DOORS, and moment. To add to the scientific anxiety of BEDROOM FURNITURE. the attending physicians, several other doctors in an unprofessional and unscientific spirit circulated a report that they had acted with brutality in operating upon the boy and profor his life. After the lapse of several weeks it was found that a fungous growth had pushed the scalp, up and formed a large and dangeline-looking protrusion. The doctors did not care to meddle with it until they were positive, of its real character, and for three or four months it grew larger and larger.

Drs. Deardo ff. and Sponogle saw that the time had come to remove the ugly protuberance, and they cut it off, cleaned out the wound again, and drew the cut edges of the scalp as near together as they could. They took out two and three-quarter ounces of the brain and subjected the fungoid matter to a microscopic examination. They found, as they expected, that it was composed of true nerve tissue. Contrary to expectation the wound seemed to heal, and to their great surprise they saw granulations form on the nerve tissue between the cut edges of the scalp. -The granulations, however, were rather red and had an inflamma ory appearance, but the granulations increased, the threatened inflammation disappeared, and to-day the boy is fat

A piece of the bullet still remains in his brain. but he experiences no pain and cats heartily. Of course, it could not be expected that he would escape from so terrible a shock and mutilation without some lasting infirmity. The cutting by the bullet of so much brain tissue has partly paralyzed his right side, and his ideas came to him slowly at first, but after he gets fairly started the hesitation in thought and speech is no longer

The attending physicians feel very proud of the outcome of the case. If the boy had died they would have been flayed alive with the scalpels of professional criticism.

Cases in which a patient has survived with a bullet in his brain are exceedingly rare. One of the most recent is that of a Stockton gardener named Paravagna, who was shot with a pistol bullet a little above and in front of the right ear. The bullet went completely through his brain almost in a horizontal line, and lodged against the skull on the left side. The wound was treated by local physicians, and to their surprise he recovered. After his recovery his thinking faculties were found to be considerably impaired. He would harness one side of a horse and neglect to harness the other side. He never a uld remember where he left an article a moment after he land it down, but his health was good and his muscular strength remained unimpaired. The bullet is still in his brain. +

PROSPECTUS.

HIS Company is formed with the object of purchasing building sites in the Peak District of Hongkong and erecting thereon suitable houses for Residential purposes,

With this object in view, Contracts have been entered into with the owners of Rural Building Lots Nos. 58; 59 and 61, and Farm Lots Nos. 60 and 61, for their purchase on behalf of the

The lots are all situated within a few minutes' walk of the Peak Terminus of the Tramway and from their unequalled position and convenience of access they form some of the most desirable sites at the Peak

Rural Building Lots 58 and 59 contain 62,815 square feet already levelled, and having three houses now in course of crection thereon; two more can be built on the remaining prepared sites, the estimated cost of the 5 houses is

Rural Building Lot 61 contains 32,825 square feet, already levelled, and prepared for building five houses with a Tennis Court, the estimated cost of the 5 houses is $36,000, the foundations of two houses being already built.

Farm Lots 60 and 61 contain 87,250 square feet, much of it levelled for building. This property includes the Residence known as the Haystack and which is now let at $158 per month. There are sites on these lots for 9 more houses with ample ground thereto at an estimated cost of $60,000.

Provisional Contracts have been entered into for letting the two houses now being erected for a period of two years at $120 per month.

The Company will thus hold twenty houses which should let on the average at $120 per month each, and the total annual income from those estates shou'd therefore be $29,256, or over 12 per cent on the capital to be expended.

The land is purchased, after deducting the present value of the houses now on Farm Lots 60 and 61, at an average price of a little over 50 cents per foot, including all levelling, retaining per cent. per annum, in accordance with the walls, approach roads, drainage, &c., as they | Articles of Association. now stand, which is very cheap, compared with the prices paid for other less favored sites in this District.

Plans of the proposed houses have been prepared for the Company, at whose offices they may be seen and every information obtained. The purchase money for the land is to be paid in cash, $61,500, and 3,432 Shares with $15 paid up, the vendors thus becoming liable to meet calls as ordinary Shareholders.

The estimated cost of erecting the houses and completing the same fit for occupation according to the present plans is $135,500 or a total of

.The Company has so large a margin for profits | viz.: that to pay 8 per cent, the rents could be reduced from $120 to $80 per month per house, so that while supplying a high class and well appointed Residence in the best locality at the Peak, the Company can competen with the smallest and cheapest houses in Victoria of the same class.
